

Back to School: How to Start a New Academic Year?

To begin something new is always amazing. Do you feel the same about the beginning of a new academic year? Sure. You have great expectations and so many new chances. Just grab all of them.

To actually enjoy studying and be productive, here are the tips recommended for you to follow.

1. Make an outline of your plans and goals

Set both short-term and long-term goals. With these little steps, you can do a better job obtaining good results.

2. Work on your time-management skills

Being organized is a good quality for a person who studies. During the summer, you had the chance to spend your time any way you wished. Once a school time comes along, it's a good time to start scheduling.

3. Arrange your studying environment and make a list of essential supplies

It's better to fix study supplies in advance so you don't wish you had them once you're into your studying process, and comfortably organize your working environment at home. Of course, places where you can work and study differ. So you shall identify and make everything you need for your daily studying near to a place where you can easily reach.

4. Combine both intellectual and physical work

Some people love sports, and some people don't. Since your studying takes constant intellectual work, you'd better take up some physical activity, too. When people choose only physical or intellectual work, they risk evolving in an unbalanced way. After all, it's a matter of health. So take up sports!

5. Ask your educators and classmates for help

There's nothing to be ashamed of if you need help. Don't be afraid to ask questions and ask for assistance regarding the issues you don't understand. In school all the students chase the same goal - to learn well.

6. Don't be afraid to make new friends

If you're a shy person, it can be a real challenge for you to make new friends. Perhaps it's high time to try the other role? Or just find an alternative. For example, you can join clubs according to your interests. When people share the same interests, it's so much easier to start a conversation with someone since he or she is likely to be similar to you.

7. Try to do something new

You've got lots of interests! Try to help somebody. Be a volunteer. Be a tutor for juniors. Or start a new job. You've got countless different opportunities, so go for it.

Jack Ma: The Founder of 'Alibaba'

Ma was born on 15 October 1964 in Hangzhou, Zhejiang, China. He began studying English at a young age by conversing with English-speakers at Hangzhou international hotel. He would ride 70 miles on his bicycle to give tourists tours of the area to practice his English for nine years. He became pen pals with one of those foreigners, who nicknamed him "Jack" because he found it hard to pronounce his Chinese name.

Later in his youth, Ma struggled attending college. The Chinese entrance exams are held only once a year and it took Ma four years to pass. After that, Ma attended Hangzhou Teacher's Institute and graduated in 1988 with a B.A. in English. While at school, Ma was head of the student council. After graduation, he became a lecturer of English and International Trade at Hangzhou Dianzi University.

He later enrolled at Beijing-based Cheung Kong Graduate School of Business and graduated in 2006. Jack Ma applied for 30 different jobs and got rejected by all. "I went for a job with the police; they said, 'you're no good,'" Ma told "I even went to KFC when it came to my city.

Twenty-four people went for the job. Twenty-three were accepted. I was the only guy..." In addition he applied 10 times for Harvard Business School and got rejected.

In 1994, Ma heard about the Internet. In early 1995, he went to the US and with his friends they helped him get introduced to the Internet. He started working on website development with his wife and friends. In 1999, he quit and returned to Hangzhou with his team to found Alibaba, a China-based business-to-business marketplace site in his apartment with a group of 18 friends.

In October 1999 and January 2000, Alibaba won a total of a multi-million dollar foreign venture capital investment. The program was expected to improve the domestic e-commerce market and perfect an e-commerce platform for Chinese enterprises. After the rapid rise, other giant companies offered to purchase the company. However, Ma rejected their offer.

On 2014 Alibaba became one of the most valuable tech companies in the world after raising $25 billion.

In 2017, Jack Ma entered the acting industry with his first kung fu short film Gong Shou Dao. In the same year, he has also participated in singing festival, as well as performing dances during Alibaba's 18th anniversary party.

The Book Donation Program @ EPS

Books are the jungles where people gain knowledge in multi wide forms. However, unless we read and use the books that we have in our libraries, book shelves, stores, shops, they are nothing by themselves as they cannot speak to us by themselves. Thus, we are all expected to develop our reading habit; not only for academic purposes, but also for getting informed about things in several aspects. It is also advisable to share the books that we have already read and used for others who are in need.

Ethio Parents school has implemented a book donation program in which students of Ethio-Parents School and the whole school community donate the books they have already used to their school. In turn the school uses these donated books for other students attending their education in the same school to stimulate their reading culture and use them as a reference.

Currently, students, parents', teachers and support staff members of the school are donating several books. It is believed that the program can create a good culture for building the future generation that have a better habit of reading and sees the world in the perspective of enlightenment.
